

The Affordable Care Act (ACA): Breast Pump Coverage is required

- Most supply a purchase
- Rental pumps may be covered for certain medical needs (See the back of this page for details)

Where and when will my insurance pay for one?

- Most provide a pump from a local medical equipment store (DME)
- Some insurances provide a pump from a national supplier

Call your insurance's customer service number on your card before you deliver! ASK:

1. Where can I get my pump? Local DME (store in Rochester area, ship to home) or National (ship to home only)?
2. Is there a specific breast pump that is covered, or is it up to me?
3. Can I get my pump before I deliver?

Which pump should I get?

- Many double electric pumps can pump both sides at the same time and work well
- Talk to a Lactation Consultant for more information

Does it matter which store I call for my pump?

- Make sure you get knowledgeable people and good customer service
- We have a DME on site to make things easier for you! We offer:
 - Delivery of a quality breast pump to your patient room
 - Supplies
 - Hospital-grade pump rental
 - Referral to Lactation Services for any breastfeeding problems

Breast Pump Rental: Providing Milk for Your Baby with a Medical Need

Your insurance may cover the full rental cost of a hospital grade double electric pump if your baby is in the hospital after birth. This type of pump can help you to make more milk, faster and more comfortably.

Here is a list of Durable Medical Equipment (DME) Providers in our area and nationally. Please call to confirm that they have a contract with your insurance company to provide breast pumps.

NATIONAL - Durable Medical Equipment (DME) Suppliers – All accept BC/BS, Aetna, Excellus BC/BS, Cigna Medicaid coverage varies depending on your specific plan – the below suppliers accept Fidelis Care. You will need to call for other Medicaid plans.

Visit their websites for information on whether your insurance is accepted. Some will have only one pump option available for your insurance provider; another supplier may list several you can choose from.

National suppliers may take your call/online order up to 30 days before your due date. They may take 7 – 10 business days for processing and delivery. Most do not have the ability for you to ‘upgrade’ your pump – that is to select a different breast pump than your insurance covers, even if you pay the difference.
